

NATIONAL CANCER SURVIVOR MONTH

Thanks to cancer research, there are currently 16.9 million cancer survivors in the United States. Despite the challenges of short-term and long-term effects of treatments, cancer survivors are resilient. The American Association for Cancer Research (AACR) celebrates survivors and encourages individuals touched by cancer to learn more about the science of survivorship and discover how research can save lives.

What will you do to support cancer survivors?

Raise Awareness About Survivorship. Tell someone that June is National cancer Survivor Month. Take selfie, write a blog, or share a social media post about your survivorship story. Tag AACR and use hashtags #CancerResearchSavesLives and #CelebrateSurvivorship.

Contact a Member of Congress. Share your concerns about funding, clinical trials barriers, and better treatments with your member of Congress. Reach out to your representative to make cancer research and survivorship research a national priority.

Subscribe to Cancer Today, the AACR publication for cancer patients, survivors, and their family members and friends.

Join the AACR Advocacy Community. Engage with AACR on social media. Like the AACR Facebook page, follow the AACR on Twitter, and join the AACR Advocate Facebook group. Join the conversation and share the patient/survivor perspective.

Donate to Lifesaving Cancer Research. The AACR is committed to helping prevent and cure all cancer. Your donation to lifesaving research propels the important work of the 42,000 AACR scientific members worldwide who are leading the global effort to defeat cancer. With every donation, 88 cents of every dollar raised goes to cancer research.

Take the Patient Advocacy and Survivorship Survey. AACR is interested in hearing from patients, survivors, caregivers, and advocates. As we are developing programs and initiatives to support the advocacy community. Your voice matters.

Sign Up for the AACR Advocacy Alerts. Receive quarterly emails that keep you in the know about AACR programs, events, and with fellow advocates.

Change Your Facebook Profile Frame. Support National Cancer Survivor Month by adding the American Association 'June is National Cancer Survivor Month' frame to your Facebook profile picture.
